“Tayorail series” assists users in standing up from a bed or a sofa

Independence support rail “Tayorail” series (welfare equipment)

▶ Outline

The “Tayorail” series of independence support rails helps to improve the activities of daily living (ADL) of the disabled elderly and the disabled.

When people have difficulty standing up from a bed or a sofa due to a decline in their physical functions caused by aging or a disability, they become unable to live an active life without realizing it.

The “Tayorail” series assist these people to move around without difficulty in their daily lives and help to boost their independence, thereby improving their quality of life (QOL).

► Features

The “Tayorail” series can be easily installed without extra structures.

“Tayorail” is installed in places where people need support to make it immediately available. “Tayorail high” can be fixed securely, stretched tightly between the floor and the ceiling.

“Tayorail” and “Tayorail high” assist users to stand up from a bed or a sofa according to their physical status, as well as serving as a handrail for walking aids with the use of “Watarail,” an optional rail that connects individual rails.
